COLD-BLOODED DESPERADO DESCRIBES FOUL KILLINGS

FOURTEEN DEAD BY HIS HAND

Modern Bluebeard Placed Under Arrest In Chicago.

MAKES STARTLING CONFESSION

Dancing Teacher Who Was Shot to Death In Illinois Town One of the Victims of the Self-Accused Murderer—Gives Police a List of the Persons Slain, Stating Robbery Was the Motive of Twelve Murders.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Mildred Allison Rexroat, dancing teacher, who was shot to death at Wheaton, Ill., a week ago, was the victim of a modern bluebeard, who, according to his own confession, had killed 13 others in as many years.

Henry Spencer, arrested in a room near the South Side levee district, confessed that he not only killed Mrs. Rexroat, but that he had slain 14 persons. He was positively identified as the mysterious Mr. Spencer with whom Mrs. Rexroat left Chicago on night she was killed. Mrs. Rexroat's bloodstained rattan suitcase was found in his room, as was the revolver with which he said he had killed her.

The police, while in doubt as to the full truth of Spencer's story, are confident that they have found a whole-sale murderer and that he will be proved to have killed at least several of those whose deaths he described in a long confession.

All of his murders except two, he declared, had been for the purpose of robbery. The two policemen, Pennell and Devine, shot to death 12 years ago, he said he killed to escape being arrested. "I intended to kill Mrs. A. J. Schofield, the proprietor of the rooming house where I have been living," he said. "If I hadn't been arrested at just this time I would have killed her."

The police explained that Spencer was being permitted to tell his story without interruptions or suggestions. Spencer admitted that robbery was his only purpose in killing Mrs. Rexroat. Spencer told the police that he had killed 10 persons since his last release from the Illinois state penitentiary in September, 1912, and four, a man and a woman and Policemen Pennell and Devine, before that. Except in the slaying of the policemen, who Spencer said were shot by himself and a companion named Murphy in escaping arrest for burglary, the killings were all for purposes of robbery. Following is the list of killings Spencer related to Chief of Detectives Halpin.

- One man and a woman, about 14 years ago.
 - Policemen Pennell and Devine, 12 years ago.
 - Two girls at Pawpaw Lake, Mich., last August.
 - One girl at Lake Delavan, Wis., last summer.
 - One woman at Belle Island, Mich., last summer.
 - One man shot in Chicago this fall.
 - One old man shot in a South Side park two months ago.
 - One woman shot and burned on the Northwest Side of Chicago late last summer.
 - One woman killed near the Cook County hospital a few days ago.
- The police can not account for all of the victims Spencer claims to have slain. The only victim Spencer was able to name was Fannie O. Thompson, who probably is the woman he said he killed before he started on his alleged career of murder.

FINDS PRISON SYSTEM A FORM OF SLAVERY

Osborne Says It Takes From Convict Individual Initiative.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Thomas Mott Osborne, chairman of the state commission on prison reform, came out of Auburn prison after spending 15 hours in the "dungeon" cells with five other inmates. Mr. Osborne was confined under the alias of Tom Brown. He went to prison to study the actual conditions there. In a statement he said:

"I am more than ever confirmed in my previous opinion that the prison system is singularly unintelligent, ineffective and cruel. The prison system is absolutely a form of slavery. It takes from the convict his individual initiative and freedom of action and he becomes an irresponsible automaton. When he returns to the outside world, therefore, he finds he is unable to resume his own initiative and to be the guide of his own destinies. This accounts for so many men who leave prison and return as second terms."

From the first moment that a man arrives in prison he is made to realize that he is no longer an individual human being. He is only one very unimportant unit in a community which is undergoing penance for certain crimes, and the penance differs only in the matter of duration. The next companion on my tier of cells may be a forger, burglar, a murderer, a defaulting cashier, he may be a college graduate or a bowery tough, an intelligent Yankee or an ignorant foreigner, yet all here are clothed alike, fed and housed alike, and each man ceases to be an individual, and becomes a moving automaton in a gray suit."

Crashed Into a Buggy a Few Moments Before the Fatal Accident, Badly Injuring Occupants—Later Collides With Auto Carrying Physicians Summoned to Try to Save Victim's Life—In Jail On Serious Charge.

Canal Dover, O., Oct. 6.—Shortly after he had placed an engagement ring upon the finger of Miss Fern Dawson while they were taking a walk, Reynold Wagner, 28, was struck and killed by an automobile driven by Adam Lantzer, a fellow employee at the plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Lantzer only a few minutes before had struck a buggy occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Krantz, and after killing Wagner hit an automobile owned by Dr. S. B. McGuire, who, with Dr. P. M. Wagner, had been summoned to try to save Reynold Wagner's life. Mrs. Krantz was hurled from the buggy and suffered internal injuries. Chief of Police Maurer arrested Lantzer soon after the series of accidents and he is held in the county jail on a general charge of homicide pending an investigation of Wagner's death. Miss Dawson, who was walking with her fiance, escaped injury. She declares Lantzer failed to stop after striking her escort.

FRIEND AND FOE OF NEW ULSTER ARMY STARTED IN NORTH OF IRELAND TO FIGHT HOME RULE

Belfast, Ireland, Oct. 6.—Will the Ulster volunteer army, organized to fight if the home rule bill passes, ever go into action? Sir Edward Carson, heart and soul of the Unionist movement, who is here in the interest of the Ulster army, says it will. On the other hand, home rule advocates in Dublin think the bubble will burst. Winston Churchill, who is an ardent friend of home rule, believes the arrangement will cool off after the bill is actually passed. The accompanying pictures show these two opposing leaders in characteristic attitudes speaking for and against home rule.

Girl Places Red Rose On Her Breast and Sends Bullet Into Her Head.
Belleville, N. J., Oct. 6.—Clara Courter, 18-year-old daughter of Charles Courter, placed a red rose on her breast and sent a bullet into her right temple at her home here, in grief because the man who had promised to marry her had apparently disappeared out of her life. She died shortly after she was found unconscious on her bed with the weapon near the rose.

According to statements made by the girl's parents to Chief of Police Flynn, Robert Edwards, 40, a railroad brakeman living at Philadelphia, asked permission a week ago to marry their daughter. Edwards made an appointment with Miss Courter to get a marriage license last week and failed to keep it. Later he telephoned to the girl to meet him, but did not appear.

It also made the important decision that the courts have no jurisdiction in an action of injunction based upon the ground of alleged unconstitutionality of a proposed law, to forbid the submission thereof to the electors. It is understood that the liberal interests will appeal the case to the high court.

BROKEN DRAW-BAR CAUSES DELAY

As the time approached for the arrival of Royal Blue Flyer No. 104 Sunday morning, an active scene presented itself at the B. & O. in this city, when several freights were hurrying to get in the clear for the passenger train.

A double header, running light, came in from the east, and a double header came up from the west. Two other freights followed from the east and one from the west. To add to the general mix-up a double-header appeared on the C. H. & D. and wanted across the B. & O. track.

It was then time for the B. & O. passenger train, which happened to be late. As the freights were juggling about to get off the main track, an air hose snapped on one in front of the depot and the train of cars was jerked in twain when a draw-bar pulled out. It was necessary to flag the oncoming passenger train before the crippled train was pushed into a siding. When No. 104 pulled out it was 50 minutes late.

BIRTH OF THE GRAND CANYON.

Nature's Mighty Forces That Wrecked the Crust of the Earth.

"How do you explain it?" inquired one on meeting Sir John Murray, the eminent English geologist and president of the Royal Geographical society, referring to the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. This was briefly the answer, though not in his words:

"On either side of the wide plain extending from sixty to a hundred miles to the right and left of the canyon evidences of severe volcanic action are visible. In the center was a plateau, but you now look down upon it as the vast chasm of the canyon. Thrice the volcanic forces of nature, operating on either side, violently and with tremendous power, forced this plateau upward, and finally in one cyclopean, tremendous upheaval the plateau parted, and the Grand canyon, the wonder and mystery of the world, was born.

"Imagine a loaf of dough rising silently under the continuous pressure of the yeast until finally the crust is broken and the loaf divided into two. Then look at this broken crust of mother earth. In the early days a vast area embracing a great portion of the interior of the American continent was covered with water. It was a great sea. All over the canyon fossil oyster shells proved this contention. The Grand canyon opened; the waters of the inland sea rushed through in a tearing flood and carved the fantastic forms you now see."

The questioner further inquired of Sir John, "No doubt this was all very remote, in the early ages of the world?"

"Oh, no," said Sir John. "Modern, quite modern—not more than twenty or thirty million years ago!"—Leslie's Weekly.

TRUE HORSE MARINES.

They Helped Bolivar Out When He Was in Need of a Fleet.

The llanero of South America lives on horseback, trades, buys and sells on horseback, and during the war with Spain the llaneros contributed much toward achieving the independence of both Venezuela and New Granada. In "Up the Orinoco and Down the Magdalena" Mr. H. J. Mozans tells of an occasion when it was necessary for Bolivar's army to cross the Apure in order to engage Morillo. But Bolivar had no boats, and the Apure at this point was wide and deep.

The Spanish flotilla was guarding the river at the point opposite to the patriot forces. Bolivar was in despair. Turning to Paez, he said, "I would give the world to have the Spanish flotilla, without it I can never cross the river."

"It shall be yours in an hour," said Paez. Selecting 300 of his llanero lancers, all distinguished for strength and bravery, he said, pointing to the gunboats, "We must have these cacheras or die. Let those follow who please."

At once spurring his horse, he dashed into the river and swam toward the flotilla. The llaneros followed him with their lances in their hands, now encouraging their horses by swimming beside them and patting their necks, now shouting to scare away the crocodiles, of which there were hundreds in the river. At last they reached the other side and sprang from their horses' backs on board the boats, headed by their leader. To the astonishment of every one who beheld it, they actually captured the entire flotilla.

"Why do you keep me waiting on this corner two hours?" demanded the irate husband. "You said you were merely going to step in to see how Mrs. Gable was."

ANNUAL RALLY DAY IS INAUGURATED IN LOCAL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Innovation Introduced Sunday Morning by Rev. Gage—Large Audiences Attend Both Morning and Evening Services and New Record is Established in Sunday School Attendance.

The first Sunday of October marked two special services in the Presbyterian church and drew out large crowds both morning and evening.

The new pastor, Rev. Gage, inaugurated in the morning a "Rally Day Service," which will be observed annually at this service. Mr. J. T. Tuttle, of the Board of Elders, read the roll of church membership, each member present responding. The annual roll call is a happy suggestion, in that it enables the congregation to keep in touch with church membership and there is special effort made by members to be present when it is called.

The service throughout the music, and a beautiful address made by Rev. Gage, was inspiring and it gave a true Rally Day impetus to church membership.

Sunday night a beautiful Antiphonal Service with two choirs, the first of a series to be presented at intervals, was given. The regular church choir, under the able direction of the leader, Mrs. Lulu H. Robinson, was in its accustomed place, while the second choir, made up of Mr. and Mrs. John Durant entered, joined Mr. Durant's mother, Mrs. S. E. Durant and sister, Miss Esther, of Tilton, Sunday.

Hon. Reuben Rankin and Mrs. Rankin returned the last of the week from Plano, Ill., where Mr. Rankin represented Fayette county at the Farmers' National Congress.

Mr. and Mrs. George Garringer, of Jamestown, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Conner and children, of Sabina, Mrs. Sherman Barlow and daughter, Ruth, of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Robert White, of Greenfield, were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Hyer.

Miss Layon Cockerill was the guest of her brother, Mr. Earl Cockerill, and wife, in Dayton, Sunday.

After Six Months' Work

The new tariff bill called, in order to distinguish it from the tariff bills which have gone before and the tariff bills which will come after it has outlived its usefulness, the Underwood bill is now a law.

After about six months of the most trying work President Wilson and the leaders in Congress who believed the platform promises of a political party constituted a pledge to the people have finally convinced the comparatively few of the Democratic majority who still adhered to the old order of things, of the error of their position.

The Democrats who believed in a tariff on wool, a tariff on sugar and a tariff on this, that and the other, owing to the particular interests of a few of their powerful constituents, finally surrendered to the inevitable and the nation is soon to know by actual test whether the position which the party now in power has steadfastly adhered to for the last twenty years is the correct one.

The enactment of the new tariff law thus early in the term of office of President Wilson, seems to assure a genuine try-out of the measure. It reduces to a minimum the probability of a business condition created for political effect.

The President and the leaders of his party were quick to see the dangers of postponing the enactment of a new tariff law until another election was near at hand.

The Underwood law differs materially from the Payne-Adrich law which it succeeds, and is the nearest approach to such a bill as the Democratic party has promised the people would be the ideal bill, as it was possible to get with the present Congress.

Had all Congressmen been as true to platform pledges as the President, the work could have been done in six weeks instead of requiring six months.

The work entailed upon the chief executive and upon the party leaders in Congress was not so much in framing the law as it was to hold Congressmen true to their promises to the people, as many of them looked at the tariff question from entirely different angles after the election.

The Underwood bill is finally a law. The party in power has staked its hopes for the future upon that measure and accordingly as the law proves to be good or bad in its practical operations on the business of the land, will the voters turn to or away from the party now in power.

In all likelihood the effect of the new tariff will determine the result of the next national election. The party in power may bring about numerous reforms. Every other act may be a success, but the voters of the land will, in all probability, credit or charge, as the business conditions are good or bad, all to the account of the Underwood law.

The people have heard much of the Underwood bill in the six months last past, but they will hear more of it during the next three and a half years. It is the keystone of the arch upon which the party has builded its whole structure.

Within a Century Resources of World Will Be Taxed to Full Capacity

By H. N. DICKSON, of the British Association For the Advancement of Science

THE GEOGRAPHER OF THE FUTURE WILL HAVE AS HIS FIELD THE VITAL QUESTIONS OF SUPPLYING AND DISTRIBUTING FOOD AND CLOTHES TO THE WORLD.

Foremost of these vital questions will be that of GROWING WHEAT ENOUGH FOR THE WORLD'S BREAD. A host of problems of the future are marshaled behind this, among them being the questions of obtaining power and energy sufficient to operate the needed increase in factories, the fuel question and distribution of population. Within a century the resources of the world will be TAXED TO THEIR FULL CAPACITY.

CIVILIZED MAN IS, OR OUGHT TO BE, BEGINNING TO REALIZE THAT IN REDUCING MORE AND MORE OF THE SURFACE OF THE EARTH TO WHAT HE CONSIDERS A HABITABLE CONDITION HE IS MAKING SO MUCH PROGRESS AND MAKING IT SO RAPIDLY THAT THE PROBLEM OF FINDING SUITABLE ACCOMMODATION FOR HIS INCREASING NUMBERS MUST BECOME URGENT WITHIN A FEW GENERATIONS.

We are getting into the position of the merchant whose trade is constantly expanding and who foresees that his premises will shortly be TOO SMALL FOR HIM. In our case removal to more commodious premises elsewhere seems impossible, for we are not likely to find a means of migrating to another planet and are thus driven to consider means of REBUILDING ON THE OLD SITE.

If prophecies based on population statistics are trustworthy the CRISIS WILL BE UPON US BEFORE THE END OF THE CENTURY. After that we must either depend upon some substitute to reduce the consumption per head, or we must take to intensive farming of the most strenuous sort.

Poetry For Today

ENDURANCE

How much the heart may bear and yet not break!
How much the flesh may suffer and not die!
I question much if any pain or ache
Of soul or body brings our end more nigh;
Death chooses his own time; till that is sworn
All evils may be borne.

We shrink and shudder at the surgeon's knife,
Each nerve recoiling from the cruel steel
Whose edge seems reaching for the quivering life.
Yet to our sense the bitter pang reveals
That still, although the trembling flesh be torn,
This also can be borne.

We see a sorrow rising in our way,
And try to flee from the approaching ill;
We seek some small escape; we weep and pray;
But when the blow falls, then our hearts are still;
Not that the pain is of its sharpness shorn,
But that it can be borne.

We wind our life about another life,
We hold it closer, dearer than our own;
Anon it faints and fails in deathly strife,
Leaving us stunned, and stricken, and alone;
But ah! we do not die with those we mourn,
This also can be borne.

Behold, we live through all things—
Famine, thirst,
Bereavement, pain, all grief and misery,
All woe and sorrow; life inflicts its worst.
On soul and body—but we cannot die.
Though we be sick, and tired, and faint, and worn,
Lo, all things can be borne.

The incorporators are: E. L. Ford, John L. Prisinger, John Merchant, Samuel N. Yeoman, William Millikan and C. A. Palmer and Morris Sharp of Greene county.

The Herald carrier boy will be hopping about among his friends early on New Year's morning with his annual address, ready to accept blessings, great and small, from all who choose to bestow them.

The reception given by Col. S. N. Yeoman and lady, at their residence last Thursday evening, in honor of their nephew, Mr. Cicero Smith and his lady, on their return from their bridal tour, was a splendid affair. About two hundred guests were present and the Colonel and his lady succeeded to a charm in their efforts to entertain them in the pleasantest manner possible. The bride and groom were elegantly and tastefully attired, and received the congratulations of their friends very gracefully. The supper was superb, nothing was lacking that could be supplied to tempt the palate.

DEFENSE FUND FOR BECKER

New York Gunmen Said To Be Directing the Raising of It.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—Twelve New York gunmen, according to the authorities, are directing the raising of a defense fund for Charles Becker, the former New York police lieutenant, who is now awaiting death in the electric chair at Sing Sing. Besides raising a fund for convicted police officials the gunmen are seeking contributions from Philadelphians with which to erect a tombstone over the grave of Jack Zelig, a New York gangster who was murdered on the eve of testifying to gambling conditions in New York. The collection of money for the two funds has been going on for the past two weeks. Most of the money contributed so far comes from the pockets of local gangsters and creatures of the underworld.

Don't Trust Calomel

Thousands Experience Bad After Effects From This Dangerous Drug.

A Safe Vegetable Substitute is Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets for the Liver.

Dr. F. M. Edwards, a prominent physician of Ohio, has discovered a laxative and liver toner in a combination of vegetable materials mixed with olive oil, which is in effect almost exactly like calomel, except that there are none of the bad after effects.

Dr. Edwards has long been a foe of calomel, though he recognized its value along with its dangers.

His distrust of the uncertain drug eventually started him, years ago, towards experiments with the view of discovering a substitute, and he has been for several years in possession of the long-sought-for combination, which is in the shape of a little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablet.

The results of 7 years' experience and practice are embodied in these marvelous little tablets.

They are called Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. And their effect on the liver has been the means of relief to many of Dr. Edwards' regular patients as well as to thousands of others who have suffered and were afraid of calomel.

There is no necessity, when you take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, by following them up with nasty, sickening, gripping salts, or castor oil, as you do after taking calomel. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

Hartman Theater

Raymond Hitchcock, probably America's most popular musical comedy star, will be seen at the Hartman theater, Columbus, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, October 13, 14 and 15, with a matinee Wednesday in his brand new three-act musical comedy, "The Beauty Shop". The new play is by the same author who provided "The Red Widow", one of the most successful offerings in which the droll comedian has ever appeared. The book and lyrics are by Channing Pollock and Renold Wolf, with a singularly tuneful and appealing score by Charles J. Geibel. There are twenty-odd musical numbers in "The Beauty Shop". The book is confidently expected to even exceed "The Red Widow" in popularity. It is replete with witty dialogue, sparkling epigram, with surprising dramatic complications humorously contrived. A superior cast of associate players has been selected. The company is a large one and includes of course, the famous Hitchcock Beauty chorus of 25 singing and dancing artists.

"MOSES, THE LAW GIVER," FORMS THEME FOR INTERESTING ADDRESS DELIVERED TO MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

Attorney Nye Gregg Presents to Grace Church Bible Class the Life of Great Biblical Character, and Class Unanimously Votes to Have Address Published in Full.

"Moses, the Law Giver" was the theme of a very interesting address given before the Grace Church Men's Bible class Sunday morning, by Attorney Nye Gregg, and upon a unanimous vote of the class, the address is given below in full as follows:

The subject assigned me is "Moses, the Law Giver."

In order to properly discuss this subject, we of necessity, must consult the scripture to determine what we can about the life and character of this great man.

The narrative in the Bible, introduces him at an early age, when he is an infant, cradled and placed among the rushes, where he is found by the Princess, the daughter of Pharaoh.

No other cradle in the history of the entire world, has been of such importance to the thousands of Christians who have departed to the Spirit World, and none will be such in the countless thousands yet to come, except one, only, the cradle of our Lord the Savior, in the manger.

Moses was reared in the court of the King, in his household; and as a member of his family, and was, (it is thought), educated in their best schools. He thus lived under this influence until manhood.

He was the chosen of the Lord for a great purpose and in his young manhood his love of justice and his hatred of tyranny, is shown in his first act that is recorded.

"That of slaying the Egyptian who was beating an Israelite."

When he slew, when no one, as he thought, was looking and hid his body in the sands, but upon his crime being discovered he fled from Egypt to the land known as Midian, where, by reason of his inbred love of justice, he drove off the shepherds who were treating unfairly the daughters of "Jethro" the Midian Priest, and by this act gained for himself a home and a friend in the strange and strange land, and was afterwards, on account of his fidelity, given one of the daughters of Jethro, to wife.

Here in this new home, he must have passed many years, tending the flocks of the Midian Priest, for he is mentioned as leading the flocks to the further edge of the desert, even nearly the holy mount.

That he thus spent many years, is evidenced by the words of the Chronicler (Ex. ch. 7, verse 7.)

"And Moses was four score years old, and Aaron was four score and three years old, when they spake unto Pharaoh."

In the solitude of the desert, alone and undisturbed, he had ample time for thought and reflection, and for repentance for he was guilty of an act, the punishment of which, among his people, he afterwards fixed the penalty as death.

I refer to the act of killing the Egyptian, which does not seem to have troubled him.

With Moses as the man so true in authority, the high judge of all the disputes and differences of the people, this vast concourse moved along, guided by the angle of the Lord, and preceded by the pillar of cloud by day, and lighted by the pillar of fire by night.

How long, in point of time, this journey occupied is not entirely clear. In one account it is said that they traveled on "Manna" for forty years, and another account is that they reached the vicinity of Mount Sinai in the middle of the third month of their journey.

But whatever the time required, they did reach the place chosen by the Lord to appear to Moses and the people and to lay down to them the rules of conduct on their part that he would have them keep. (This he did in the ten commandments.)

It is universally conceded, that these are Divine Laws for the account says that:

"They were written with the finger of God."

While this is so recorded, it is true, that it is not to be taken as literally of writing, but the term is used in a figurative sense, and that story, under the Divine guidance of the Lord, and inspired with the great principles to be announced, having knowledge of his people, and their dispositions, that he put the commandments in the form recorded and engraved them on the tablets of stone.

And if this be so, it does not in any way detract from their Divine character, for as we have heretofore read, the Lord said unto Moses, "I will be with thy mouth and will teach you what ye shall do."

These commandments are not mere arbitrary rules, but as the perfume of the flowers, partake of and are of the very essence of the life of the flower, so these commandments partake of the essence of the character and spirit of God.

He would have his chosen children pure and free from sin in all its forms, and so he gave them the commandments that they were to keep and not violate.

But giving Moses credit for putting them in the form best suited to the needs of the human family, he thus became the greatest law giver of all time, for (without entering into a discussion of any of these separate commandments) it is sufficient to say, that these ten commandments form the basis for all the laws that are today, and in the centuries past, have been announced and promulgated by our courts and law makers.

They are written the principles in the statute books of our own fair state, as well as those in every state of the Union. They were adapted as the basis for the earliest decisions of the common law courts, and so it has remained unto the present day.

Before the descent of Moses from the Mount, at the end of the first forty days and nights, the people, whom Aaron was unable to restrain, had stoned in this that they had caused to be made false gods, or graven images (the golden calf) and Moses returning and finding this condition, was very wroth, and in his anger the tables of stone were cast down upon the ground and broken.

But this sin, on the part of the people, was severely punished (Ex. Ch. 32, verse 20.)

Here I think it fitting to call attention to a question which was asked by a member of the class some Sundays ago, which was: "Does the Divine Commandment 'Thou shalt not kill,' prohibit capital punishment which is the punishment for the crime of murder under our laws?"

The answer at the time, given by our minister was, that this commandment, out of necessity for the protection of society, was not considered as applying to such a case.

No, only is this so, but here we find that Moses, immediately after the ten commandments were imparted to him, for the guidance of the Israelites in their conduct towards one another, and while he must yet have been under the Divine influence prescribed the penalty above quoted.

"He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death."

Moses had been preserved as an infant, when others perished; he had been educated in the best schools of that day and generation; he had been sent into the desert as a lonely shepherd, for meditation, to muse upon, and to learn wisdom, from nature, and in all this we see the hand of God, leading on and preparing him for the great purpose that he was destined to fulfill.

It was here as a shepherd at the edge of the desert, that the Lord appeared to him in the Burning Bush. He expressed to the Lord a doubt of his fitness, and said "that he was slow of speech." But the Lord answering, said (Ex. Ch. 4, verses 14, 15, 16, and 17.)

14. "And the angel of the Lord was kindled against Moses and he said, is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can speak well and also he shall be a cometh forth to meet thee, and when he seeth thee, he will be glad in his heart."

15. "And thou shalt speak unto him, and put words into his mouth, and I will be with thy mouth and will teach you what you shall do."

16. "And he shall be thy spokesman unto the people, and he shall be, even he shall be to thee instead of a mouth and thou shalt be to him instead of a God."

17. "And thou shalt take this rod in thine hands, wherewith thou shalt do signs."

Then he and Aaron led the people out of Egypt, across the Red Sea and onward toward the land that was promised, which was to be a land flowing with milk and honey, and a large and a good land, the bounds thereof was to be from the Red Sea to the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert to the river.

What a scene this must have been! What a task Moses had before him! To counsel, guide and govern the vast concourse of people, for it is written, (Ex. Ch. 12, verse 37) that there were of the Israelites 600,000 men, not counting the children.

With Moses as the man so true in authority, the high judge of all the disputes and differences of the people, this vast concourse moved along, guided by the angle of the Lord, and preceded by the pillar of cloud by day, and lighted by the pillar of fire by night.

How long, in point of time, this journey occupied is not entirely clear. In one account it is said that they traveled on "Manna" for forty years, and another account is that they reached the vicinity of Mount Sinai in the middle of the third month of their journey.

8. Again the rock had been cleft by the rod, and the life-giving water had gushed forth for their preservation.

All this they had seen and knew but they did not yet understand fully God's purpose for them, and he, Moses, pleading for them, loving them, was willing to make their sin his sin, and for them, to take the punishment, to be blotted out of the Book of life.

What a great character. While the ten commandments must be considered as Divine Law, giving Moses credit only for putting them in the form best suited to the habits and characteristics of his people, yet he personally must be credited with the authorship of the laws and ordinances thereafter promulgated, for the guidance of the Israelites, concerning their personal conduct and property rights.

In this connection we must consider that they were as yet a wild, strong-willed people, only partly civilized, as Moses had said of them, to the Lord, they were a stiff-necked people. They had just been freed from a bondage which had lasted more than four hundred years, and on becoming their own masters, were inclined to excesses of every kind.

They as yet had no fixed place of habitation, and as property had only their flocks and herds.

All this we should take into consideration in judging the laws given by Moses, for their personal conduct and property rights.

Some of these now, to us, would seem harsh, but at that time were no doubt necessary in order to compel obedience.

As for instance, (Ex. Ch. 21, verse 17.)

"And he that curseth his father or his mother, shall surely be put to death."

These laws, many of them, are characterized in the term, as we would now say, of "Equal Compensation."

To illustrate, again (Ex. Ch. 21, verses 23, 24, 25.)

23. "And if any man shall smite his fellow, so that he die, he shall give life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burning for burning, wound for wound, strike for strike."

But these laws, all of them, the Divine, as well as the man-made, were intended for the "uplift" of the people of Israel in a moral way.

It was intended that they should live better, purer and cleaner lives.

They were the chosen of the Lord, to whom the word of God was given, that they, and through them, all men of all generations to follow, might know God's plan of life, and his plan of salvation, and in this connection it may not be amiss to reproduce here, a thought, which was contained in an editorial in one of the leading Sunday papers.

Thought for Today.

The recent expression of science has given to the future life something more than a dream. It declares that memory and affection keep right on after one dies, and these two conditions embrace about all there is of the spirit of man. We have been looking upon this great fact so much in the light of sentiment that all our sentimentalizing the future life has been more or less into disfavor.

"The Sweet By and By," "The Home of the Soul," "There is a Land," etc.

"Nearer My God to Thee," "Jerusalem the Golden," are sung more for their gentle melodies than for their inspiring thoughts. But since science has spoken, the scene is changed. The eye of faith sees more clearly and sees farther now, that science has held up a light that shines through the gloom of the grave. Behind every flower that decks a coffin, a hope is smiling.

Death stands above me, whispering low.

I know not what into my ear, Of this strange language all I know is, there is not a word of fear.

INDICTMENT FOUND IS AND IS NOT IN FACT

GRANTS JEROME'S REQUEST

Governor Pelker Agrees to Postpone Final Action in Thaw Case.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 6. Bernard Jacobs, representing William Travers Jerome and other New York authorities, in answer to a request by wire received a telephone message from Governor Pelker agreeing to postpone final action in the extradition proceedings under way in this state in the Thaw case.

Further time is given by the governor by reason of the new proceedings which have within a day or two been under contemplation by the office of the district attorney of New York.

Governor Pelker is also in receipt of an affidavit by Mr. Jerome in which he reiterates his statement, made at the extradition hearing in this city, to the effect that an indictment had been found against Thaw. The affidavit further states that this indictment was subsequently withdrawn at the request of Jerome and that the reason therefor would in due time become apparent.

aimed at the importation of them as merchandise, but that it does not cover individual cases of women wearing akrette plumed hats when they land from abroad."

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin, in charge of the customs division, declared he knew nothing of the incident of when Mme. Ada Bellacqua and other women were subjected to the new rule barring akrettes.

New York dispatches declare that the customs inspectors tore the plumes from these hats, despite protests from the women, and in the face of a storm of sarcastic allusions to the "chivalry" of the inspectors and the framers of the tariff bill.

Mr. Hamlin expects to have soon an official report on the operations of the akrette provision, but until then, he said, he will make no comment on the New York dispatches, or on his future course with respect to the akrette law.

Tariff experts in congress are beginning already to warn the public that too much must not be expected of the new law at once. Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee said it would be many months before the reductions promised might be felt. It is only competition caused by the new law that is going to reduce prices," said Mr. Underwood. "Goods that merchants have now in stock were bought under the old high tariff and until these goods are sold out the merchants will not accept the basis made by the new law. It will be several months before the effect of the new law on commodities is felt and in many cases it will be a year."

Treasury officials estimated roughly that about $100,000,000 of foreign merchandise held in bond or held as cargoes awaiting the signing of the new tariff law began to be unloaded for appraisement at the reduced rates of duty. This means a loss in revenue on this aggregate of about $10,000,000, as compared with what would have been derived under the Payne Aldrich law.

AFTER FIFTY LONG YEARS COMRADE BRINGS CHICKEN TO WOUNDED COMPANION

E. W. Welsheimer Receives Fowl Promised by James Robbins Who Set Out to Forage for Chicken Half Century Ago.

REMARKABLE INCIDENT
PROBABLY HAS NO EQUAL

"Here's Your Chicken" Are the Words of Greeting From Man Who Promised His Comrade He Would Secure One to Relieve Him From Diet of Pork and Hard Tack While In Hospital Tent.

Nearly fifty years is a long time to "forage" for a chicken promised a wounded comrade, but a chicken promised to him nearly half a century ago has just been delivered to E. W. Welsheimer, of this city, by James Robbins, of Indianapolis, Indiana.

The story reads like fiction and the occurrence is one which probably never before took place, and may never again occur.

In 1858 Mr. Robbins left this county and went to Indiana. He was a close friend of Mr. Welsheimer, and when the war broke out both men enlisted and were sent to the front. Robbins was with the 10th Indiana, and after the battle of Waukegan, in which Mr. Welsheimer was seriously wounded, he was carried across the river at that point and placed in a hospital which had been established on the river bank.

It was while lying in the hospital hovering between life and death that Mr. Welsheimer opened his eyes one day and there stood his former neighbor, James Robbins.

After chatting a short time Robbins ascertained that his wounded comrade was suffering for something else to eat besides pork and hard-tack, so he volunteered to forage for a chicken for him, and left accordingly. He succeeded in picking up a fowl, but upon his return the army had moved and the hospital had disappeared, together with the wounded man who had been awaiting the return of the man with the chicken.

That was the last the two men heard of each other until a short time ago, and each believed the other dead. However when Mr. Robbins learned that Mr. Welsheimer was still alive and resided in this city, he made arrangements to pay him a visit, and a few days ago he suddenly appeared before the man who last saw him as he was leaving in search of a chicken.

On his way to this city Mr. Robbins had provided himself with a well-cooked chicken, and when he dropped into this city and stood before his comrade he greeted Mr. Welsheimer by thrusting the fowl into his hands and saying, "Here's your chicken!"

It was a warm greeting between the two men, and later they together enjoyed the fowl which had been fifty years on its way.

The two comrades are still enjoying a visit together, the first in half a century—a most eventful 50 years to both of them.

CIRCULATION FAKERS MUST TOE CHALK LINE

Washington, Oct. 5.—Postmaster General Burleson is preparing to institute a rigid investigation of the statements of circulation filed with the postoffice department by the newspapers of the country under the law requiring such statements twice a year.

The department holds that circulation as defined by the law means the net paid circulation of the newspaper. Complaints have been reaching the department that many papers have based their circulation reports on distribution other than that which is paid, and investigation and prosecution of all such offenses is planned.

The plans of the department are being supported by the leading newspapers of the country on the ground that the law will be valueless unless the utmost exactness in circulation statements is enforced.

The investigation will be conducted through the postal inspectors throughout the country, and a complete report on all statements will be gathered within a short time.

Farm Homes Swept Away.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 5.—An enormous scope of territory along the Colorado, Guadalupe, San Antonio, Trinity and Brazos rivers in south Texas was added to the inundated territory. At Victoria the Guadalupe river is the highest on record. Scores of farm homes in the path of the floods were swept away. Hundreds of head of live stock were drowned along the lower reaches of the streams. The ungathered crops in the valleys are a total loss.

Two Noted Giant Twirlers Who Will Oppose Athletics

RUBE MARQUARD.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

THE chief reliance of Manager Mugsy McGraw of the New York Nationals in the world's series games, opening Oct. 6, will be his two classy twirlers, Christy Mathewson and Rube Marquard.

Matty is feared by the Athletics more than any other pitcher, and it is likely that McGraw will use the celebrated veteran in the first contest.

Marquard has been pitching well this year, though not up to his mark of last year, when he won nineteen straight games. Marquard has more than earned the $11,000 purchase money paid to Indianapolis for him a few years ago by John T. Brush, late owner of the New York Nationals.

Matty has been a standby for McGraw most of this season, and he eased up a trifle during recent games to save himself for the world's series.

ATHLETICS AGAIN WIN WITH EASE BY 8 TO 3 SCORE

Barn Stormers From Chillicothe Could Not "Get Organized" and Let the Athletics Win Seven Runs in One Inning—Noon and Corwin Do Some Fancy Batting. While Jones Picks Up a Hot Fly.

The Washington Athletics had little trouble in defeating the Chillicothe barn-stormers Sunday afternoon in the presence of one of the largest crowds assembling on the local grounds this season.

The game was interesting until the fourth inning, when the local boys made seven runs before the visitors could put them out. After this the interest dwindled, and the final score was 8 to 3 in favor of Washington.

The visitors pulled off a bunch of errors, and in the 4th their catcher suffered a broken finger, which necessitated a switch of the lineup.

Features of the game was the batting of Manager Noon and Corwin, and Jones' sensational catch.

All fans are looking forward to Wednesday when the Cincinnati Reds play the Athletics on the local field.

Next Sunday afternoon the Dayton All Professionals, with five regular Dayton League players in the lineup, will play here.

The box score of Sunday's game is as follows:

NUN DESERTS CONVENT.

Sister Leocadia Believed to Be Teaching Music in New York.

Niagara Falls, Ont.—Sister Leocadia, teacher of music in Mount Loretta Convent, at Falls View, a mile south of this place, has left the convent, where she had spent more than twenty-five years of her life. It has just become known that Sister Leocadia, apparently wearying of the life within the cloister, made her departure from the convent several months ago. It is believed that she made her way to New York and is trying to earn a livelihood by teaching music.

At the age of eight Margaret Coulier of Philadelphia entered the Mount Loretta convent. She was an orphan who had one brother. Her next nearest relative was an uncle. She became a novice at the age of sixteen and took her final vows at the age of twenty-one, when she became known as Sister Leocadia. Soon after she took the veil she became teacher of music in the convent.

Girls from all sections of the United States and Canada have studied music under Sister Leocadia. It is said that she was very popular among her pupils as well as among the sisters of the convent because she was comely in appearance and charming in manner. Her beauty had often been remarked by persons who were in the habit of visiting or passing the convent.

Mount Loretta Convent is the parent institution of the Loretta Sisterhood in Canada. When inquiries were made recently at the convent for Sister Leocadia it was learned that she had not returned. Mother Joseph, assistant to the mother superior, said that Sister Leocadia had gone away, and she added that she did not know her whereabouts. Mother Joseph, however, said she believed that Sister Leocadia was somewhere in the United States.

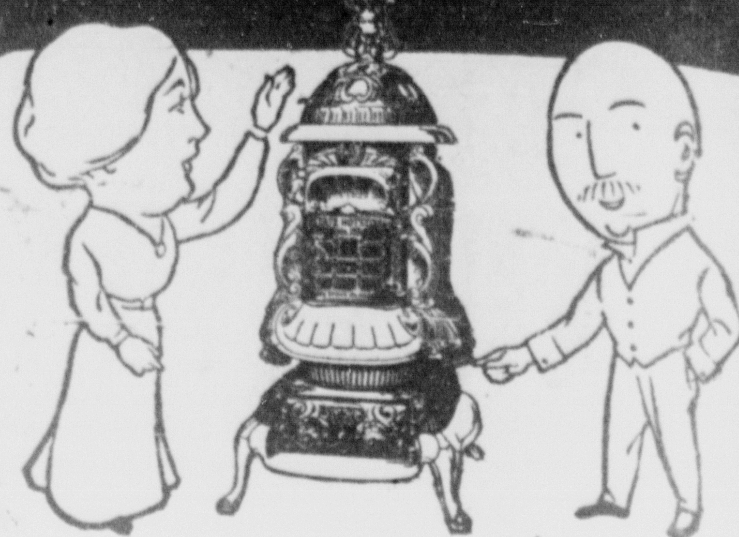

Delicately Handled.

Speaking of fitting marriages, an east side clergyman said:

"I favor healthy marriages only, to be sure. Health certificates would be an excellent thing. I have noticed that the Italians among us have a tactful way of managing that."

"The Italian father and mother ask the young man who seeks their daughter if he is insured. If he is not they urge him to take out insurance before the wedding, and sometimes they insist upon it. They put the argument for it on the usual grounds, the risk of his dying suddenly and leaving his family penniless. But what they are often most concerned about is assurance as to the suitors good health. They feel satisfied that if he can get insurance there is nothing serious the matter with him."

"Now, that seems to me a happy way of dealing with a delicate problem to the satisfaction of all hands and the embarrassment of none."—New York Sun.

Some Circulation!

YOU wouldn't believe it—no one does until he learns by actual experience—that the circulation of hot air produced by the "little furnace" in the Estate Hot Storm is as powerful as you find in the ordinary furnace.

But just try to hold your hand over the discharge ports of an Estate Hot Storm when it's fired up full, and you'll be quickly convinced.

Estate Hot Storm

—the heating stove with a "little furnace" in it works like a furnace because it's built like one. Air drawn into the "little furnace" through pipes on both sides of the stove, is heated to a very high temperature, and then discharged from the top of the stove, either into the room in which the stove sets, or into a pipe to conduct the heat to the upper floor.

This distinctive feature of the Estate Hot Storm's construction should be reason enough for you to give this stove the preference, but there are other reasons almost equally important. The Estate Patented Jointless Ash Box insures perfect fire control throughout the life of the stove; the Estate Tubular Hot Blast Attachment gets out of the fuel every atom of heat that's in it; the Estate Double Strength Single Fire Pot, the strongest, longest-lived, most powerful and economical heater that has ever been built.

Make up your mind to "Own an Estate" this season and make it an Estate Hot Storm—the stove with a "little furnace" in it. We'll be glad to explain the construction to you at any time.

MOVES HIS HOUSE 23 MILES.

Stump and His Workmen Live In It During the Journey.

Finest, Conn.—George Stumpf moved his house, a 10 by 30 foot frame of three rooms, from North Hartford to Hall Meadow, a distance of twenty-three miles, without breaking anything in the dwelling.

While the habitation was in transit Stumpf and his men, who did the moving with the aid of horses, had their meals in the house, and at night they camped about the kitchen stove, and corn, smoked, read newspapers and swapped stories before going to bed.

Years ago Stumpf and his men moved the same house from Huntington, Mass., to North Hartford, where it is in the lumber business.

WELLSTON POLICE CHIEF EXONERATED

Chief of Police Al Ward, of Wellston, formerly a C. H. & D. detective, who is well known in this city, and against whom charges were recently preferred by a man with a fancied grievance, was exonerated from the accusations when a trial was held Saturday.

Following the charges Chief Ward was suspended for a few days, but he will receive full pay. His vindication will be pleasant news to his many friends in this city.

During his administration as chief, Mr. Ward has made a general cleanup of Wellston, and as a result has some bitter enemies who are planning some way to "get even".

HUMUS IN THE SOIL.

This Valuable Substance Is Due to the Presence of Bacteria.

We find a vast difference in the fertility of different soils, writes C. L. McArthur, assistant bacteriologist, Idaho experiment station. For instance, sand, although it may contain all the elements necessary for plant food, is still found barren and without vegetation. Garden soils, however, may contain less plant food than the sand and still be considered very fertile. This difference is usually due to the substance known as humus. Where the humus is present the different elements are present in a form that plants can use. This humus is the remains of previous plants and animals. When plants die that part which is not used for commercial purposes usually goes back to the soil. In much the same way a great deal of the animal body reaches the soil.

As soon as this material reaches the soil it is attacked by millions of bacteria, which are known as the decomposition bacteria. These bacteria soon cause a great many changes in the material, each change tending to break down the complex into the more simple compounds. A part of this material is set free in the form of gases and is lost in the atmosphere, but the greatest part remains in the soil as a partly decomposed mass and is known as humus.

Different classes of bacteria continue their work on this material after it has reached the form of humus, decomposing it still further and building plant food and other substances from it. Thus we see that humus is continually changing. It is never the same in two different fields, and it also differs from year to year of the same field.

The addition of manure to a field does a great deal toward the formation of humus. It not only adds decomposing matter to the soil, but it also adds large numbers of bacteria which form humus out of the material already in the soil. Thus we find that if it were not for the work of bacteria there would not be any humus, as the various plant and animal matter would not decay.

Governor William Sulzer of New York was the eighth governor of the United States to be placed on trial for impeachment. The case aroused wide interest because of the personal fight which had been waged between Sulzer and Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall. The charges against the governor dealt principally with his alleged misuse of campaign funds. It was charged that he was heavily in debt when he was elected and that he used thousands of dollars of campaign funds to recuperate his fortunes in Wall Street. The governor entered a general denial and was prepared to fight for his political life. This very good likeness of the impeached executive was taken on the eve of his trial.

BATTLE ROYAL ON TOMORROW

BOTH TEAMS READY FOR WORLD'S SERIES

National Commission to Go After Ticket Speculators.

New York, Oct. 6.—Preparations for the games for the world's championship between the Philadelphia club of the American league and the New Yorks of the Nationals, have been completed. The initial clash occurs in this city tomorrow. Both clubs are fit and a mighty contest is anticipated. A record-breaking crowd will witness the opening game.

If speculators offer tickets for sale in this city, the national commission will conduct an investigation. As Secretary John B. Foster of the New York baseball club said, every reserved seat disposed of there are 8,000 of them is numbered and the allotment is recorded with the name of the purchaser on the books of the club.

Private detectives hired by the commission will try to buy tickets at various ticket agencies, and if successful, the New York club will be asked to divulge the names of the original buyers of the passes, which the commission is expected to make public.

The national commission meets here this afternoon and will doubtless go over the situation.

McGraw hasn't decided what pitcher he will use against the Athletics in the opening game. "I haven't made up my mind myself," he says. "This thing of predicting some particular pitcher for some particular game is something which I never found to work well. My pitchers are in splendid shape for the series. There is not a man in the lot that has been over-worked. All year we've taken good care to avoid that. Doyle looked good in Saturday's game. You noticed that he hit every ball squarely on the nose. Snodgrass wanted to play the full game, but I told him there was no use taking a chance."

The Athletics had final secret practice at Shibe park this morning. They will arrive here this evening, getting here in time for 6 o'clock dinner. Quarters have been engaged for nearly 30 players in the care of Connie Mack at the Hotel Somerset. The

ABLE CATCHERS IN WORLD'S SERIES

Backstops More Important Than Generally Believed.

HOLD DOWN BASE STEALING

Figures Show Good Work of Connie Mack's Receivers—Meyers and McLean of Giants Two of Best Men in Their Branch of the National Game.

In the midst of all the talk about the superior value of good pitchers to a ball team in a world's series and of the crowning merits of $100,000 in fields, one should not overlook the importance of catching staffs and their influence on the game.

A good, heady catcher is one of the best assets a team can have in a series of battles that will determine a world's championship. The backstop has all the players constantly in view and can frequently save a situation in an emergency that otherwise would prove a severe setback to his team.

The catchers of the New York Nationals are a splendid brace to the team. "Big Chief" Meyers and Larry McLean are not only reliable receivers, but they are strong at the bat as well. Owing to an injury to Meyers, requiring that he should not be worked too hard before the world's series, Manager McGraw made a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals for the big muscular McLean.

Both the giants and the Athletics have been facing the certainty of difficulty in stealing bases in the world's series, owing to the throwing qualities of the rival catchers. Mack has Schang, Lapp and Ira Thomas, but the latter, formerly with the New York Americans, does not get into the game very frequently.

When the Athletics and the Giants engaged in their struggle for the highest honors in balldom two years ago experts with a leaning toward the National league expressed the opinion that John J. McGraw's band of fleet footed young men would make life miserable for Connie Mack's receivers. The prevalent belief being that neither J. Ira Thomas or John W. Lapp could keep the Manhattanites from fleching hassocks in great numbers. When the series was over eminent statisticians, pondering over the dope, found that McGraw's able athletes had succeeded in pinching just four hassocks in a six game series and that nine of the players who represented the senior organization had been turned back when they set forth on thieving expeditions.

J. Ira, who is aging, is not the pegger he once was, but Lapp's arm seems to be just as powerful and as accurate as it ever was, and as for Schang, he is one of the niftiest little sharpshooters ever in fast company.

Last winter, in an effort to find out just what catchers were the most successful in thwarting steals, Ernest J. Lanigan, a sporting writer, got up figures that showed the number of men who had been pegged out and the men who pegged them out. That batch of statistics showed that Lapp, Egan and Thomas had frustrated 179 thieving expeditions, which was as many as any other set of receivers in the American league had frustrated.

In only four games this year have the Athletics' opponents been able to garner more than four steals, which is more proof that there is nothing wrong with C. Mack's windpaddists. And in the four games where the opposition ran wild on the paths the men on the rubber were kidlets. You don't find a team stealing five bases in a game with the Athletics when Edward Plank, Albert Bender or Carroll Brown is in charge of the flinging department, those three men being expert at making runners stick close to their bags.

PHOTOS BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

LARRY McLEAN, CHIEF MEYERS

A QUERY FOR THE FANS.

A Cleveland correspondent, writing of a recent Cleveland-Athletic game in Philadelphia, said:

"Chapman almost committed a grievous crime in the seventh inning. Luckily for Chappie, Schang's boneheaded play appeared at the same time. Chapman was on third with the bases filled. Johnston struck out. Schang dropped the third strike. He forgot the rules of the game, and so did Chapman. Chapman dashed toward the plate, thinking he had been forced. Schang stepped on the plate, also thinking Chapman had been forced, and hurried to McInnis for a double play. Chapman scampered back to third before McInnis could get the ball to the bag."

Puzzle—What was the biggest bonehead play pulled and by whom?
